

WALLACE McGARRY, INSTRUCTOR
OIL PAINTING CLASS
July 23 through August 27, 2008

St. Michaels Art League
Christ Church Parish Hall
St. Michaels, MD

Wallace McGarry studied art at the Chounard Art Institute for six and one half years before starting a thirty-five year career in commercial illustration and advertising. He worked in both New York City and Los Angeles.

As creative director for an advertising firm, he taught young designers and illustrators the basics of design – color, shapes, integration of different typefaces, and photography. After he retired to the Eastern Shore, he taught classes in beginning oil painting at the Dorchester Art Center. He has also taught this class through TCVAC in Spring 2008.

His works, mostly oil paintings, have been shown in the Los Angeles area, Bethesda, Easton and Cambridge.

Wallace strives to instill in his students a sense of self-confidence and satisfaction in their own work by simplifying shapes and subjects using a limited palette.
